PROCLAIMING JULY AS PARKS AND RECREATION MONTH

Executive Summary

Since 1985, America has celebrated July as the nation's official Park and Recreation Month. A program of the National Recreation and Park Association (NRPA) and the America's Backyard initiative, the goal is to raise awareness of the vital impact that parks, recreation, and conservation have on communities across the United States.

Park and recreation services are vital for our communities — from protecting open space and natural resources, to helping fight obesity, to providing activities and resources for all walks of life — Park and Recreation Month encourages everyone to reflect on the exponential value parks and recreation bring to communities.

According to a 2015 study conducted by Penn State and commissioned by the National Recreation and Park Association, an overwhelming majority of Americans assert that they personally benefit from local parks and that their communities benefit from local parks.

- Americans are in agreement that NRPA's Three Pillars — Conservation, Health and Wellness and Social Equity — are chief priorities for local parks.
- Parks are a great value: 4 in 5 Americans concur that local parks are well worth the tax dollars spent on them.
- This passion for local parks has gone unabated over the past 25 years, even with dramatic demographic shifts in the United States and the ways technology transformed how we interact with others and entertain ourselves.

Support for local parks is widespread, spanning different age groups, income strata, household types and political affiliations.

This July we're celebrating 32 years of Park and Recreation Month and the power of play. Play is a vital part of our mental wellbeing, physical health and personal interactions. Play is important and it's going to happen in parks because local parks and recreation facilities are the accessible places for all people to play. Parks are ideally suited as the places where all people can play — regardless of ability. We invite you to "Get Your Play On" utilizing our fabulous Rock County Park system this July and all year long!
